2. Citations and explanations: Claims 1-29 lack novelty under PCT Article 33(2) as being anticipated by Abad (USPN 5,538,740). The reference discloses a therapeutic and cosmetic topical formulation for the treatment of skin and a method of using said composition. The composition is a cream comprising a carrier that is applied to the skin in order to remove photo-aging damage (col. 3, lin. 32-col. 5, lin. 25). The carries include polyethylene glycol and the composition delivers arginine a nitric oxide donor to the skin (example III). The composition includes vitamins A and D as well as mineral oils as well as sodium chloride (col. 7, lin. 1-25). The cream is an anti-wrinkle cream that lifts and firms the skin it is applied to (examples. These disclosures teach the novelty of the instant claims and render them anticipated. Claims 1-29 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over the disclosures of Abad (USPN 5,538,740). As discussed above Abad discloses a method of treating skin that teaches the novelty of the claimed inventions. It is the position of the Examiner that these teachings also disclose the inventive step of the instant claims, since they embody each and every step of the instant claims. It would not be inventive to arrive at the presently claims since they have been taught by the prior art. Claims 1-29 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus possess an industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.
